International Studies is an interdisciplinary Program that brings together the strengths of faculty from across the university to examine the major issues of the contemporary world, combined with language skills and a study abroad experience. The International Studies Program provides a flexible and balanced combination between classroom instruction and direct contact with the regions and cultures of interest.

When you leave Humboldt State, you’ll be ready to pursue a career in the United States or abroad; from diplomacy and foreign relations through international business, journalism and teaching to international development and nongovernmental organizations.

This program also provides a basic foundation for further graduate work and scholarship in the growing field of International Studies.
