

The Mind of Man . . .

all modern marvels of intergalactic exploration and unfolding of the inner atom are dwarfed by the real miracle of . . .

the Human Mind itself.

Man's mind is precise enough to explore the inner atom . . . delicate enough to weep at the beauty of a rose . . . exquisite enough to thrill to the unchained harmony of music . . .

yet it is cosmic enough to be at home among the stars, in a universe where yesterday's Unknown is today's commonplace.

To be entrusted with the exciting of that mind . . . and thus to hold a basic responsibility for molding Mankind's Destiny . . . this is the Supreme Trust inherent in Higher Education.
