2016 Annual Undergraduate History Conference

Keynote speaker Dr. Ken Albala,
Professor of History and Director of Food Studies
at University of the Pacific, will present

“Food and Power”

A discussion of the way political regimes through history have exercised power through control of the food supply. But more fundamentally this is a story of how any exploitation of one human by another has usually been involved in the business of food and continues to be so in subtle and unrecognized ways.

Keynote address
FRIday, April 15
5:30–6:30 P.M.
RICHARD’S GOAT MINIPEX,
401 I STREET, ARCATA

Undergraduate presentations
SATURDAY, APRIL 16
9 A.M.–4 P.M.
FOUNDERS HALL 118 AND 125

Biography: Ken Albala is the author or editor of 24 books on food including academic monographs, popular food histories, encyclopedias, handbooks, and two cookbooks. His food history course is available through the Great Courses company and on Audible. His current project is a book about noodle soup.

Contact the History Department for further information: 707-826-3641 or histdept@humboldt.edu.